

Patrick Quigley

SENIOR MORTGAGE BANKER

“Congratulations on taking your first step toward your refinance or purchase. Choosing the right lender to fit your specific need is arguably the most important thing a homeowner or future homeowner can do. The mortgage process is known for its twists and turns. Having a reliable navigator is what makes all the difference. With over ten years of mortgage origination experience, I have helped hundreds of homeowners in the St. Louis and surrounding region buy and refinance their primary, vacation, and investment properties using a variety of government and conventional loan programs. My personal, daily mission is to be the most valuable and trusted source in the mortgage industry for all of my clients. Let my experience be your advantage. Give me a call, allow me the opportunity to earn your business and help guide you through this process.”

Patrick Quigley comes to F&B Financial Group with over 10 years of experience in mortgage origination and business development. Working for direct-lending, non-profit, and large retail bank operations over the years using both government and conventional loan programs, he is well versed in the large variety of mortgage solutions available to his clients for purchase and refinancing. He has a BFA in Art from California State University, Fullerton, with Master classes at the Academy of Art in San Francisco.

Born and raised for most of his life in St. Louis, he enjoys getting out and exploring the city, finding new places to take his family on hikes and walks. A soccer player for life, he still plays recreationally in local leagues. He lives in Glendale with his wife and two daughters.
